

REFLECTIONS ON EMBODYING POSSIBLE FUTURES

Scenario 1

Shifting my work from full-time to half time and the other half being in the corporate world. I got energized from this scenario. I felt challenged in a new way, I enjoyed the income, and was still able to meet interesting people, use my brain and my heart. I was able to incorporate my systems mind and relate to a different type of clientele on a related topic. I felt rejuvenated, excited and scared.

Scenario 2

What I realized was that what I was contemplating doing was for all the wrong reasons. I realized that unless I shifted my focus it would go against what I valued most about my current career. Soul suck seemed to fit the picture.

Scenario 3

What I am currently feeling is that maintaining the status quo is simply not challenging enough and I will burn out in 5 to 7 years. I do need a new challenge be it scenario one or something totally different.